In line with the institution's commitment to promoting ethical research practices and intellectual property awareness, the program titled "IPR Awareness and Ethics in Dental Research" was successfully organized by the Office of R&D-IPR Cell in association with the Institution's Innovation Council (IIC).

The program aimed to sensitize faculty members, postgraduate students, research scholars, and interns about the importance of Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) and ethical considerations in dental research. The sessions highlighted the role of IPR in protecting original research work and ensuring responsible conduct in academic and clinical research.

Participants were introduced to various forms of IPR with special emphasis on their relevance to dental research publications, clinical innovations, academic content, and digital resources. The program also addressed ethical issues such as plagiarism, data fabrication and falsification, authorship disputes, informed consent, conflict of interest, and responsible research publication.

Case studies and real-time examples were discussed to help participants understand the consequences of ethical misconduct and IPR infringement. Guidelines for ethical research practices, proper citation, originality in research, and compliance with national and international research standards were emphasized.
